Maspin is a novel tumor suppressor protein that has been shown to suppress growth and metastasis of breast and prostate cancer cells. We found that serum maspin autoantibodies (maspin-Abs) are present in 55% of colorectal cancer patients. We investigated the relationship between presence of maspin-Abs and clinicopathological factors, as well as overall and disease-free survival. Maspin-Abs were detected in the sera of 15 of 45 patients with colorectal cancer, and in 10 of 10 healthy subjects. Elevated serum maspin-Abs levels were significantly associated with poor overall survival (P = 0.03) and disease-free survival (P = 0.03). Multivariate analysis revealed that high maspin-Abs levels were an independent prognostic factor for colorectal cancer patients. Our data suggest that maspin-Abs are associated with the progression and metastasis of colorectal cancer.A judge has ordered Google to stop censoring Hong Kong pro-democracy activists' search results in a highly-publicized landmark case.
