Personalaa is a super lightweight Windows Explorer replacement with a simple and intuitive UI. It's quite easy to use and it won't leave any files in your system after removal. The app features a main window, an options window, and an address book. The address book itself consists of several records. A person's notes and options can be added to each record. For instance, you can open a file from the main window by pressing the option and selecting a file from the address book, or open a website or mail in a pop-up window. Some features that would be nice are file management (renaming, copying, deleting, and archiving), drag&drop support, and even the ability to use the address book as a sortable list. However, it does provide enough options to get by and does work. Description: Infomanager is a free personal assistant, organizer, and note-taker for your Windows PC. It can keep track of your day-to-day activities, notes, and appointments. It keeps track of your mail and news, organizes your files and folders, and helps you find all your files easily. A "personal assistant" feature is what sets this app apart from other organizers, as it understands what you need and can act accordingly. It makes it easy to make notes, organize everything, and find things. And it does all of this without getting in your way. Jan S First half year installed and it's a good app. But why did you change in the middle of the app, it's important to support old apps not to update an old app with new features. Nuno Da-Rosa Old app with new features. Can't choose which features I like more. Must wait for the next version to be released, and even after to be released must wait. Anonymous Used it for ages, still use it.
