The second step in the analysis of this matter is to review the facts of this case to determine if they are of the same or similar kind or class as those acts and whether the past acts have received some treatment in the present prosecution. The evidence indicates that the crimes occurred in several discrete and defined events within a time period of only a few hours and over a distance of only a few blocks. The evidence showed that defendant was out of custody at the time of the instant offense and at the time of his past felonies, i.e., numerous criminal episodes committed in one or more of the crimes over a short period of time. While being out on bail for his prior felony charges, defendant committed the instant offense. The instant offense did not duplicate the past crimes, nor do the past crimes duplicate the present charge. The prior convictions occurred ten years ago, and the evidence of same does not show any similarity between the past and the present. Thus, the evidence of the prior crimes do not support a charge of habitual offender in the instant case. *732 We note that defendant may seek to impeach the State's witnesses by cross-examination, but there is no showing of any other evidence to support a charge of habitual offender, especially a showing of a similar past crime to the instant one. This assignment lacks merit. Decree For the foregoing reasons, defendant's conviction and sentence are affirmed, and his request for oral argument is denied. AFFIRMED. NOTES [1] The victim remained handcuffed for a short while until other officers arrived and took over. [2] We note that the show-

(Reuters) - American Tool Brands Inc ATB.N plunged 90% after the U.S. Commerce Department said Thursday it was imposing anti-subsidy duties on the company's hot wire-cutting saws in a case over cheap imports from China and Indonesia. FILE PHOTO: Amphenol, a subsidiary of American Tool Brands, is pictured at a plant in Washington, Illinois, U.S., June 21, 2017. REUTERS/Jim Young/File Photo The company, which makes equipment to cut the steel on pipelines and crude oil wells, announced it would file a trade complaint on Monday after the Commerce Department said the Chinese-made miter saws were being sold in the United States at less than fair value because the U.S. government agency had found them "unreasonably subsidised". "So far, what we have collected from the Commerce Department is a list of apparent violations of U.S. anti-dumping laws," the company said in a statement. "This is only a handful of what we believe are many violations of anti-subsidy law which we intend to raise in our complaint. We will continue to watch the situation and, if additional violations are found, we will take appropriate action." The company did not say how much it planned to seek in damages. The United States also imposed duties on a variety of oil country tubular goods - including well-head tools and other drill pipe and tubing components - from Brazil and Malaysia in May because it determined those countries were subsidising the exports of products deemed to be "being dumped". The U.S. Commerce Department and U.S. International Trade Commission, in separate cases, said the imported and exported products were sold at or above fair value. U.S. steelmakers are facing their lowest demand for about a decade as oil- and gas-drilling activity has dwindled, making it difficult to pass along the cost of raw material to customers. For the third quarter, U.S. drillers cut spending on capital spending by

I do apologize for the lack of benchmarks, but I've been busy these past two weeks. However, I'm starting to get it down, so as I go forward I'll start to add these as I find them. The focus of this review is to try and do a complete and thorough overview of the game. I'll start with the 2GB and go up to the 8GB, so there may be quite a few reviews in the pipeline. I do apologize for the lack of benchmarks, but I've been busy these past two weeks. However, I'm starting to get it
