KeyMacro is a macro recorder for Microsoft Windows (95/98/NT/2000/XP/VISTA/Win7), based on the operating system keyboard. It records the keystrokes from the keyboard (both the computer keyboard and the keyboard attached to your mouse) and save them to a text file. This way you will be able to create a sequence of keystrokes that will simulate a predefined action in any program or web site. KeyMacro is so simple to use and you can create and save a macro in just two steps. In the Main window, you'll need to create a macro (Create macro) and then choose which action you want to create (Insert). Once you've selected a macro, you can immediately run the macro (Run Macro). Originally written by Robert Lowe (Pouette) in 2017. If you want to know more: Homepage: Evaluation of a new model of diffraction efficiency for an analysis of the quantum efficiency of a photodiode detector. A new photodiode model was developed to facilitate the analysis of the quantum efficiency of photodiode detectors for measurements of the radiative flux density in the solar spectrum. The model has two main advantages. First, it takes into account multiple reflections within the photodiode crystal; second, it allows the integration of the output signal over the full diode area, with the purpose of avoiding bias due to the finite size of the detection aperture. The obtained data were compared with other published models for photodiode response, and the results show that the new model gives a much more realistic estimation of the quantum efficiency of a photodiode, and it is recommended for such applications. The model can be easily implemented in any computational software such as SOLSTICE.
